The screenshot shows the McDonald's website's 'OUR FOOD. YOUR QUESTIONS.' section. At the top left is the McDonald's logo with the tagline 'I'm lovin' it.'. To its right, the heading 'OUR FOOD. YOUR QUESTIONS.' is displayed in yellow and red. Below this, a sub-header reads: 'Canada asked. We've answered - thousands of questions about our food. Search them all. And if you don't find what you're looking for, ask yours.' A horizontal navigation bar contains radio buttons for 'Beef', 'Chicken', 'Egg&Dairy', 'Potato', 'Ingredients', 'Nutrition', and 'Produce', followed by a 'Search' button. The main content area features a large question: 'What is McDonld's official response to the documentary film Super Size Me?' with a link to '...see answer'. Below this is a grid of six smaller question cards, each with a question, a link to '...see answer', and the author 'Jordan S. from Brantford, ON'. The questions are: 'What exactly is the difference between a Double Cheeseburger and a McDouble for its 40 cent difference?', 'Is your sausage real?', 'What is McDonld's official response to the documentary film Super Size Me?', 'What exactly is the difference between a Double Cheeseburger and a McDouble for its 40 cent difference?', 'Is your sausage real?', and 'What is McDonld's official response to the documentary film Super Size Me?'. Annotations include a line pointing to the 'Produce' radio button labeled 'Radio Buttons', a line pointing to the '...see answer' link for the top question labeled 'Slideshow', and a line pointing to the '...see answer' link for the bottom-right question labeled 'Collapsible content'.
